Joaquin Buitrago Borrás (1956–2014)

A Venezuelan-born research scientist, Joaquin worked to protect sea turtles for most of his life. His dedication, humility, and willingness to share knowledge with students and colleagues will leave a great void in Venezuela and with his colleagues around the world.

COURTESY OF SEA TURTLE CONSERVANCY

Larry Ogren (1930–2016)

A lifelong champion of sea turtle conservation, Larry was a trailblazer, a one-of-a-kind naturalist and outdoorsman, and an award-winning conservationist. A friend and inspiration to many in the sea turtle conservation community, he will be dearly missed.

Luigi Ferretti (1958–2016)

A veterinarian for more than 20 years with the Aquarium and Sea Turtle Rescue Center in Naples, Italy, Luigi will be remembered as a man of science and humanism and as one who has done much for sea turtles. He was a joyful, kind, and sincere person with an unparalleled love for all living creatures, regardless of the number of legs (or flippers) they had.
